If my parents are divorced, whose information do I need to include on the FAFSA?
Report the information of the parent with whom you lived during the 12 months preceding the date you completed the FAFSA. It does not make a difference which parent claims you as a dependent for tax purposes. If you did not live with either parent or lived equally with each parent, the parental information must be provided for the parent from whom you received the most financial support during the preceding 12 months or the parent from whom you received the most support the last time support was given.

My parents tell me that I am 18 and on my own. Do I need to put their information on the FAFSA?
Yes. You are not considered independent, for financial aid purposes, simply because your parents stop claiming you as a tax exemption, or refuse to give you support for your college education, or because you move away from home. As an undergraduate student you will only be considered independent if you are age 24, married, a veteran, have a dependent other than a spouse, homeless, or are an orphan or ward of the court (must be documented).

Can my parent(s) access information about my aid?
Once admitted you may view your financial aid record anytime on the MY FINANCIAL AID site and you may choose to share this information with your parent(s).
Because parents often have questions for us about their son’s or daughter’s aid process or award, it is important to know that under the Family Educational and Privacy Act of 1974, you are extended the right of privacy of student information, including financial aid status; which means parents need your permission to view any information.
As a student, you may choose to file an annual Permission to Release Information Form with the Financial Aid Office and the Registrar’s Office, specifying that student financial aid information may be released and to whom it may be released. Additionally, the Financial Aid Office does not release parent information to the student. All student financial aid records are bound by the strictest of confidentiality protocols.

Must I be accepted for admission before applying for financial aid?
No. You may apply for financial aid any time after January 1 for the coming academic year, however, to receive a financial aid award, you must be an admitted student.

Can I receive financial aid at more than one school?
Typically, students are not able to receive aid at more than one school, but there are cases in which this is possible. Please contact the Financial Aid Office for further details.

What is FAFSA verification?
Applications are selected for verification by the U.S. Department of Education or Madonna University. Verification is the process a followed to check the accuracy of the information reported by a student on The Free Application for Federal Student Aid (FAFSA). This is done by collecting documents used to complete the FAFSA and comparing them with the answers the student provided on the FAFSA. If your application is selected for verification, you must complete the verification process before your eligibility for need-based financial aid can be determined and awarded to you.

Grants and scholarships are types of aid that do not have to be repaid. Loans have to be repaid by the borrower.

If I receive a scholarship from a source outside the college, will it affect the amount of financial aid available?
